GRASS

To the editors

Last week I talked to Mr. Phelps who resides at 2546 Tyrone Drive across from Doyle Hall entrance. He expressed his unhappiness with the actions of a few members of our community. It seems the persons residing on Tyrone Drive cannot park their cars without fear of some kid sideswiping it.

Another complaint is the neighbor, at the turn in the road, cannot get grass to grow because cars have parked on the grass and drivers have taken short cuts to get from Tyrone to the Doyle Hall parking lot without going all the way to 30th Street and driving up the entrance from the road.

Apparently there is evidence of drug trafficking going on at Doyle. According to Mr. Phelps, contacts selling their wares are parking on Tyrone to avoid possible detection. He has seen this happen a number of times.

On Mr. Phelps' lot, his backyard, is hidden by bushes and evergreen trees. Inside this area he has observed pot and drinking parties taking place in his yard. He is rather fearful of what these people could do if they get rowdy and decide to cause a little vandalism. Naturally, people who have had the parties are not cleaning up their mess.

There are various other complaints that he did not mention. I am sure that he is not alone in having complaints about the conduct of the students. These complaints are valid and should be considered. No person should have to lodge complaints against us. He mentioned that for a Catholic run college and Christian moral values that they teach us, why cannot we be accountable for our actions. He himself is Catholic and is alarmed at the attitudes that some of us hold.

Mr. Phelps has decided that complaining and doing nothing will not help solve his problems. Across the street from him are his good friends Thomas (resides at 2545 Tyrone) and Anthony (resides at 2549 Tyrone) Vester. Both of them are I.P.D. police officers. If they find any strange cars parked on the street they will have it towed away (it has been done several times) at the owners expense. In the future if any more parties take place in Mr. Phelps' yard, he will call his friends to investigate.

How unfortunate it is that these people have to be plagued by "our" negligence, disrespect for others' property and peoples rights, sometimes downright stupidity. These people are permanent residents; they pay property tax, clean up after themselves, live private lives after serving the city as a community at large. In our case we work an average at Marian for 4 years. Our living here is not considered as a permanent residence. Each of us do not pay property tax; at best we are transients. Why then do these few Marian people have to make life miserable for those that reside as our neighbors. They will be here long after you and I are gone, unless we gross them out completely. Indianapolis will still be a city if we closed our doors and left. If every one of our neighbors closed their doors and left, the school would survive but the city will crumble and wilt away. Believe me, many beautiful cities, with fine and respectable citizens have decayed into slums when a college has forced its presence upon the city's citizens. I am not saying that this will happen to the area around us, but at the same time if we don't improve things, eventually we could change to hostility and cause dis-sension against us and we will be upset because we cannot understand what we have done wrong.

Our enrollment is down because we cannot sell ourselves to others. It would be awful if people found out that Marian is a lousy neighbor, and graduated immature adults to be dumped into a labor market that demanded clean, intelligent, respectable, mature, responsible people.

If the police were to investigate one of these parties and find contraband material in their possession, what would stop the police from starting a full scale investigation looking for a drug problem at Marian? How will you like to have undercover agents in your midst analyzing every move you make? Would you like these neighbors to start exerting pressure on certain officials to keep us in line? Could we afford bad publicity and ill feelings from the news media and those that live next to us?

I suggest then that these few "bad apples" that are in our midst refrain from their activities. Also, we must police ourselves not only in Inter-community problems, but in the intra-community as well. Let's use our heads, and with a little common sense, think about what we are doing. If we drive our car over someone's lot to save a minute only to cause ill feelings and work, embarrassment and concern by our neighbor, then we are not helping ourselves. Next time you walk on someone else's lawn to take a short cut think of the consequences to both parties. And if you want to have a party but it's illegal on campus, then what right have you to have the same party on someone else's private property without his consent? That's like some dummy shacking up in your room, because his roommate kicked him out, without your permission or knowledge. I think it would be wise to acknowledge to these people that we have done some wrong and would like to make up for our offenses.

Let's all be mature and responsible adults as we profess to be, and mend our ways and be responsible for our actions and behavior.

In the meantime please be warned that your car will be towed away if it is parked on Tyrone Drive and also be warned that those that are having these parties better stop before they have to answer to the law concerning their irresponsible behavior. They will call the police to put a stop to the things that are going on.

Sincerely,

The Shadow, esq.

In the last issue of the Carbon there was an article by John Folkerth, Jr. espousing the reason why Marian College (M.C.) is declining in enrollment. The opinion expressed has merit in specific cases perhaps, but to generalize to the "Sisters of St. Francis" is too broad and frankly incorrect. It is akin to saying that all male teachers with facial hair are "morally" restrictive, "senile", in short - poor quality teachers. I have had the experience of being instructed by "nuns" also and on the whole it has been to my advantage to have that particular nun as my professor. I have had an unpleasant learning experience from one nun instructor but this was one case in comparison to numerous courses with other nun instructors. I also have had unpleasant and learning experiences with certain male lay professors, but this does not entitle me to stereotype all male lay teachers as incompetent and persecutive. By going to another institution for my M.S. degree I have been reinforced in my opinion that the quality of instruction at M.C. is first rate. Some professors in my graduate work were less ably equipped to teach their discipline than personnel here at M.C. I particularly found that the Psychology Dept. here at M.C. is top notch as I took courses in the Psychology Dept. at the graduate level and found myself more than adequately prepared. Indeed, some texts I used in my undergraduate work here were not used in my graduate courses because "it was too difficult" (i.e. the text).

I also think that one would be hard-pressed not to be "under the law of people with opposing attitudes", since this is a daily occurrence and needs to be so for a democracy to function (i.e., people having opposing attitudes on topics). However, I would not use the term "law", perhaps "policies" since law has so many negative overtones. There is latitude and freedom within the structure and guidelines of our community here at MC and the American society to allow a reasonable display of responsible behavior (and therefore acceptance of the consequences of that behavior), to facilitate any free-thinkers within our midst. Because in any group environment there is need for some procedures, sanctions, rules, policies, laws, whatever one may label it. The trick is to have as few as possible without being too restrictive with the ones possessed or without allowing anarchy or mob rule. "We need the law, not in order to obtain the best, but to avoid the worst." (source forgotten)

I'm not out to get the author, but to give an "objective view" of the teaching quality found at MC from my experience and to comment on "the law" as I view it has and is being implemented on campus. It is good that we both can express our experiences, opinions, and feelings on this topic in this type of medium.

Sincerely,

Merle V. Tebbe

Biology & Conservation Meeting
Oct. 7 11:30 am Rm 157
People going on Field Trip this Sunday meet in front of Clare
Hall at 8:15 am.

Hey you gals, Monday is your last day to prove your worth during regular season play of volleyball. You still have a chance though, because tournament play starts October 20, the Monday after Midterm Week. All teams will participate in this tourney. This past week there were some exciting games. Monday the Frophs defeated Chicken Fat in two games, the second game with a score of 19 - 17. Mother Earth also won their first game by beating KLMN's.. Wednesday Wazuri defeated Schuck's Garden in three exciting games. Now in League A there is a 4-way tie for first. The games to watch Monday are Fruits vs. Schuck's Garden and the Klutzes vs Wazuri all of which have one loss. On Wednesday there will be a playoff game between the two winners to decide first and second place. In League B the Dipshits play Mixed Boy for second place. The El Ed's play Hell If I Know to see who gets out of the cellar as both are now winless. Hey all you guys, how about supporting your favorite team by coming to watch them play. See you at the courts.

Is there a more exciting way to end up the season than with two upsets? Not in this town there is not. In the final regular season games on Monday the Zipper Heads did something no one else was able to do, beat the O Zone Rangers. They did it in a slamming home run derby game. In this one, the Cinderella Brew Ha Ha's knocked off the Balls of Fire in extra innings. In the other game of the day, the Floating Nurds forfeited to the burned out Mind Friars (messed up the Friars perfect record) On Wednesday, the elimination tourney started and it pitted the same four teams against one another again. This time the Brew Ha Ha's came on like a ball of fire, but it was the Balls who were laughing in the end. At the same time the Zipper Heads were proving that their win on Monday wasn't a fluke. This time they handily whipped the Rangers for the second time in three days. Today at 5:30 the Zipper Heads play the defending champions, Balls of Fire.

For the last five years I have been a resident of Clare Hall. For that reason I feel that I am more qualified to write about enrollment declines than that deviant John Folberth (what else can you call a person who would write that terrible article about the Sisters of St. Francis). I realize my inadequacy in accounting for the recent enrollment decline, which I'm sure most people do. However I do feel capable of defending the necessity of the Sisters of St. Francis.

The Sisters don't detract from Marian, they are it's greatest asset. These pillars of womanhood were the founders of Marian. Through their strength Marian stayed alive, and their prayers will help the school make it past this bad time. The Sisters set an example for everyone to follow, and we as students need them as guides so that we don't follow the wrong path in life. Of course they reject the ideas of these so-called free thinkers on campus. They are much older than us and because of their extensive dealings with the real world they know more about life. They realize that anyone whose morality does not conform with theirs can never find true happiness.

As for students feeling persecuted. I'm appalled that anyone would feel this way. The Sisters are kind, forgiving, and charitable by nature. How can anyone believe that the Sisters would ever ever use the classroom to preach and seek revenge against anybody with whom they disagree personally.

If you really think about what I've written you'll realize just how much of an asset the Sisters are to this community.
